Lane Bergstrom writes: I don't know who the author of this is, but it is a pretty sagacious statement.

“The danger to America is not Barack Obama but a citizenry capable of entrusting a man like him with the presidency. It will be easier to limit and undo the follies of an Obama presidency than to restore the necessary common sense and good judgment to a depraved electorate willing to have such a man for their president. The problem is much deeper and far more serious than Mr. Obama, who is a mere symptom of what ails us. Blaming the prince of the fools should not blind anyone to the vast confederacy of fools that made him their prince. The republic can survive a Barack Obama, who is, after all, merely a fool. It is less likely to survive a multitude of fools such as those who made him their president.” (Author unknown)

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Ronald Reagan had one goal in mind when he first ran for office. He wanted to give the power back to the American people and reduce the size of government. He knew that he could succeed by rallying the majority of the American people to stand with him.

We, as Republicans, must work together to regain the power that the current administration has taken and will continue to take from us. We must make the bureaucrats in Washington understand that “We the People” means that we tell the government what to do. It doesn't tell us.

We must all be certain that we elect Republican legislators who believe that when we say “family” we mean “honor thy father and mother” and not “big brother” in Washington, as liberals believe.

OLYMPIC COMMITTEE TAKES BACK AMERICAN SKIER LINDSEY VONN'S GOLD MEDAL

The international Olympic Committee announced on Monday that it has taken back the gold medal previously awarded to American skier Lindsey Vonn and given it to U.S. President Barack Obama. Olympic officials said Obama deserved the medal more than Vonn because no one has ever gone downhill faster than he has.

FLEMING HEALTH CARE REFORM UPDATE

(Congressman John Fleming, M.D., Louisiana 4th District)

Guess how many taxes are in this bill?!!!
March 14, 2010

“As a citizen concerned about our nation's health care system, I thought you'd like to know that the health care bill being rammed through the House contains 10 years worth of tax increases to pay for only 6 years worth of benefits. These taxes total $500 billion dollars over 10 years. Many of these taxes will affect Americans earning less than $200,000 a year, despite the President's promise to avoid such taxes. Here are just a few of the taxes contained in the bill:

- $750 penalty per worker charged to employers who fail to provide government-sanctioned health insurance
- Tax on brand name drugs totaling $2.3 billion
- Increased penalty for early withdrawal from your HSA (from 10% to 20%)
- Tax on medical devices – totaling $19.2 billion

WHAT THIS MEANS FOR YOU: Some of these taxes may affect you directly. Others, like the employer mandate, will cost our economy desperately needed jobs. Others will have ripple effects through the system that will raise prices for everyone.

THE DOCTOR'S DIAGNOSIS: America needs common sense health reform, not job-killing taxes. Future Congresses will be under pressure to raise taxes even further to pay for future years of an expanded government-administered health care system.

As this process unfolds, I will continue to work to bring common sense to this debate, expose abuses of power and do all that I can to prevent bad policy from becoming law.” .....

Congressman Fleming further writes: ”House Resolution 615: Over the past few months, members of Congress and the American people have come to know the details of the Administration's proposed health care plan. Call it what you like, I believe this proposal is nothing more than government-run health care. As a physician, I am amazed at the number of bureaucrats in this House who are quick to claim a government-run health care plan is the reform this country needs. In response to this, I have offered a resolution that will offer members of Congress an opportunity to put their money where their mouth is and urge their colleagues who vote for legislation creating a government-run health care plan to lead by example and enroll themselves in the same public plan. Under the current draft of the Democrat health care legislation, members of Congress are curiously exempt from the government health care option.”

HERE IS ONE TO TWIST YOUR TWINKIE

I don't know who the author was, but considered the sentiment to be food for thought.)

“In November 2010, the entire House of Representatives will stand for re-election; all 435 of them. One-third of the Senate, a total of 33, will also stand for re-election. Vote every incumbent out. No matter what their party affiliation. Let's start in the House of Representatives with 435 people who have absolutely no experience in running that body, with no political favors owed to anyone but their own constituents. Let's make them understand that they work for us. They are answerable to us and they simply have to run that body with some common sense. Two years later, in 2012, vote out the next third of the incumbents in the Senate. We can do the same thing in 2014, and, by that time, we have put all new people in that body, as well. We, the People, have got to take this Country back, and we have to do it peacefully. That's what the Framers of our Constitution envisioned. .

I am also suggesting term limits on the NEW BUNCH - 8 years for Representatives and 12 years for Senators. No exception. The longer they stay in office the more power they get, and they love it and will do anything to be re-elected. We have limited the term of the President, now let's limit the term of the Legislators.”

(LEST WE FORGET)

WE hold these Truths to be self-evident, that all Men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness—That to secure these Rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just Power from the Consent of the Governed, that whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these Ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its Foundation on Such Principles, and organizing its Power in such Form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient Causes; and accordingly all Experience hath shewn, that Mankind are more disposed to suffer, while Evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the Forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of Abuses and Usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a Design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their Right, it is their Duty, to throw off such Government and to provide new guards for their future Security.”

From an article by Mychal Massie, posted February 02,2010. Source: WorldNetDaily <http://worldnetdaily.com>
( Mychal Massie is chairman of the National Leadership Network of Black Conservatives-Project 21)

...Perhaps Obama is bored. Perhaps he is bored and chafing at having the brakes put on his stated goal of “fundamentally changing America.” Allowing for whichever, we can say that Obama is a narcissist, and greater love hath no man than he hath for himself. Add to his narcissism his arrogance, egotism and the appearance that he alone is worthy. Egotism is a defining component of a person's personality. It is one's disposition, and it is neither bendable nor pliable, whereas arrogance is a reflection of one's core personality, which brings me to the reason for my posit pursuant to Obama's emotional stability.

I know there are no few who will excoriate me for the mere suggestion of this..so be it. But is it possible we are witnessing the subtle unraveling of Obama? What can we learn about Barack Obama by analyzing his personality quirks? Find out what they experts say in Whistleblower magazine's “Narcissist in Chief” edition. Byron wrote:”What Obama wanted was political power, and that is what sent him to Harvard Law School. 'He was constantly thinking about his path to significance and power,' another organizer, Mike Druglik, told me. He said, 'I need to go there (Harvard) to find out more about power. How do powerful people think? What kind of networks do they have? How do they connect to each other?’”

I believe we are looking at a man who believed that, as president, he would be beyond constraint.

With his newly-minted presidential power, he expected the world to be his oyster and America to be his pearl to reconstruct as he saw fit. But, he very quickly found that the American people would only let themselves be pushed so far. At this point he surely realizes that the world at large won't bow before him and that the world's “bad guys” have less respect for him than they had for Clinton. And, he is finding out the hard way that politicians are the last ones you want in your foxhole when you're under fire.

After a year of hurled insults by Obama and his minions, others had the last laugh. The only thing he brought back from Copenhagen was a bruised ego that theretofore had led him to believe that just by showing up he would return triumphantly with the 2016 Olympic games for Chicago in hand. He has suffered growing mistrust and contempt for his policies. After his distasteful State of the Union performance, even liberals, including the New York Times and Dr. Lamont Hill were critical of him. He has a perfect record when campaigning for other candidates..three losses, no victories. He is being betrayed by the words from his own mouth.

Reasonable people may find defeat and/or things not going their way a bitter pill, but they don't verbally accost and make a public display of Supreme Court justices to their faces, and you certainly do not do it with erroneous facts. It is an especially vulgar display when it comes from a sitting president. He insulted Republicans at their luncheon where he was their guest insisting they had accused him of Bolshevik plots. To everyone's surprise, he claimed not to be an ideologue. He is becoming increasingly adroit at blaming everyone else for his political failings. He has routinely been condescending and insulting to voters.

The American people oppose his agendas at every turn, and still he promises not to retreat from his positions. He, in effect, told an interviewer that ignoring the will of the people will potentially make him a “really good one-term president.” No one denies that being president falls far short of being an easy job and as Roosevelt and Nixon proved, it is not a job for those who believe themselves above the people and the laws of the land. Is it possible that Obama is fraying around the emotional edges? And if certain people are right in their suspicions, is this the first time?
